

The webpage I made gives the user information on the Boston Celtics. On the webpage itself, I have the Boston Celtic's roster listed out and I have a table of the top ten teams in the Eastern Conference (which is the conference the Celtics play in) and how many wins each team has. There are also links embedded into the website that will take the user to another website that will give them even more information.

I wanted to make my webpage about the Boston Celtics because I like the team and I wanted to make a sort of "fan website" because the Celtics are dominating and have the most wins in the NBA right now.

I also added another embedded link at the bottom of my webpage that lets users contact me by email if they wanted. Having this link on my webpage is essential because this way someone can contact me if maybe they like what they see and want to join the team.
